And now let Samuel de Champlain rest in peace for another hundred years.

The balloon finally went up in Burlington, but it required a lot of Burlington's hot air supply.

Senator Dillingham's name was neither with the Yeas nor the Nays on the tariff bill. Probably paired off.

"Burlington can do things when it tries."—Burlington Press Press.
Better do things than people.

President Taft calls a Vermont a "safe man." Has the president ever traded horses with a Vermont?

John D. Rockefeller didn't give us a present on his seventieth birthday by reducing the price of oil. No; not he.

The Canadian newspaper which referred to Frank Plumley as "Congressman Ptolemy" must be still living in the Dark Ages.

If the Seattle exposition keeps on as it has started out, it will be able to pay expenses, and that is saying a great deal as expositions go in the United States nowadays. Jamestown, for example.

Editor Lamberton of the Essex syndicate of newspapers is given credit for having given the visiting newspapermen the best arrangements at Burlington accorded them during the Tercentenary.

The Randolph Herald and News wonders if the Central Vermont railroad is "gassing" when it speaks about extending its main line through Montpelier, Barre and the Williamstown Gulf. Respectfully referred to St. Albans and, if need be, to Montreal.

It is doubtful if the city of Burlington will entertain for a great many years so many noted men as were assembled there on Thursday of this week. President Taft, Ambassador Bryce of Great Britain, Ambassador Jusserand of France, Governor Hughes of New York, Governor Proctor of Vermont, Postmaster General Lemieux of Canada, and a long list of less notable persons in national and state life, including many ex-governors of Vermont. It was indeed a large quota of well known personages.

Says an exchange:
"Shelburne, July 8.—A record automobile run was made from here to Troy yesterday by Walter H. Webb's 120 horse power Fordard driven by his chauffeur, Frank Eaton, the 126 miles being covered in 4:27. The 30 miles from Bennington to Troy were made in 23 minutes. A speed of 88 miles an hour was reached. Dr. J. C. Murphy of Shelburne accompanied Mr. Eaton."

Isn't this cause enough for action? What do the people from Shelburne to Bennington think about it? Have they had time to recover their wits?

PERMANENT ROAD WORK THAT COUNTS.

The municipalities of Barre and Montpelier are doing something toward making the main thoroughfare between the two cities into a decent road. On the Barre end of the road a strip of perma-ment road has been laid from Willey street as far as the granite plant of Jones Brothers company, and at the present time the strip is as smooth as a boulevard and it is a pleasure to ride upon it, whether in carriage or automobile. In due time the entire stretch to the city line will no doubt be macadamized. So much for Barre's part in a good work. On the other end, Montpelier will begin next Monday the construction of a permanent road from the electric company's earthen northerly to the Pioneer, there connecting with a permanent road which continues all the way to Montpelier, through the business section and thence to Green Mount cemetery. Such work as this, carried out along a well-defined policy and connectedly, will prove of very great benefit for the users of the road.

It is now left for the town of Berlin, which controls the intervening section, to adopt a somewhat similar policy and lay a permanent road, not in pieces here and there, but in continuous stretches, thus little by little tending to connect the roads which Barre and Montpelier have been putting in during the last few years. With the three communities working together, or with a certain aim in view, this part of the main road from White River Junction to Burlington will be made into as good a permanent road as one could hope to find in a state like Vermont with all its hills, gullies and rocky formations. If Berlin would devote its share of the state road money to this main thoroughfare, it would be working toward that extensive road scheme which is as yet chimerical, but which is bound to come—the laying of permanent roads on the main connecting thoroughfares.

CURRENT COMMENT

Leave a Little for the State Fair.

The White River Junction Landmark wants all talk about prospective candidates for the governorship postponed until after the state fair. We had thought so. There has been a hint from time to time that the state fair is almost equal to the fish and game league meeting as a consensus occasion.—St. Johnsbury Republican.

Corry's Faith in Montpelier.

Hon. F. M. Corry shows his interest in Montpelier by investing heavily in real estate there, having purchased a block of dilapidated buildings on State street. "Frank" says that Montpelier will double in population in ten years and shows his "faith by his works." It will be just like him to put up a modern stone or brick block, thereby adding to his real estate value as well as enhancing the appearance of the main street of the capital city.—Morrisville News and Citizen.

J. P. Marr's Poem.

That Vermont did not need to go without its borders for a tercentenary poem is shown by the grand poem that James P. Marr of Barre wrote. It is lagging ahead of the official article.—Burlington Clipper.

Elsewhere The Herald publishes the poem on Champlain, which was written by James P. Marr of Barre. For pure rhythm, music and melody, it is far superior to the Carmen-Scottard-Mackaye productions, which have been given greater prominence. It is a bit too, and real poetry is always simple. Perhaps the greater bards reach greater heights, but the plain Scotchman, like his great compatriot, has certainly gotten closer to the heart.—Rutland Herald.

Intelligent Enough to Be Hanged.

Elroy Kent's recent attempt to escape from the house of correction at Rutland was executed so skillfully as to convince many people that the convicted murderer possesses sufficient intelligence to be hanged. The crime of which Kent was convicted was one of the most diabolical in the history of the state, outlashed in brutality only by the Meeker murder in Washington county a generation ago and for which the perpetrator, a woman, was hanged at Windsor. The fact that Kent was at one time an inmate of the insane asylum may save his neck when his case comes before the legislature in 1910, but the man's career following his escape from Waterbury, as brought out in his trial, and the cunning exhibited in his attempt to saw his way out of prison is evidence that the man possesses the mind of a criminal and not that of a lunatic.—Bennington Banner.

Board of Trade Bulletin.

The first number of the St. Albans monthly bearing this suggestive heading has been received and perused with much interest.

It is of convenient size to handle and read easily and it is filled full of helpful suggestions for making St. Albans a busier, brighter and better city, and what applies to that city has equal force anywhere.

Among the articles of special interest is one headed, "What is the board of trade doing?" that tells what has been accomplished and what the board is trying to do.

Another is devoted to "A New Hotel," a subject that is very familiar to the people of that city, owing to the continual discussions since the Weldon House was destroyed by fire several years ago. St. Albans needs a good summer and winter hotel. So does every town in the state that is not now blessed with one.

Other subjects discussed are, "New Industries and the Bonus System," "Our Water Supply," "Go Ahead," etc.

One of the highest features of the Bulletin is the lead lines over each page. Here are a few: "A Mile Reasons with His Hind Feet, but He Makes Himself Understood," "The Man Who Guesses Is Bowed by the Man Who Knows," "Anybody Can Be a Hired Man; It's a Different Matter to Be a Good One," "Show Your Customers Your Back Yard," "If He Doesn't Buy Again—There's a Reason," "The More a Man Has to Do, the More He Can Do, and It Don't Hurt," "A Woman Who Makes a Good Pudding in Silence Is Better Than She That Makes a Tart Reply."

The Bulletin is to be issued regularly once a month and is well filled with advertisements, showing that it and the board of trade has the support of the business men of that city.

Any publication that is as well edited as this and backed by live men cannot fail to be very helpful to the city or community whose cause it endeavors to promote.

Let other towns follow this excellent example, or take space in their local papers for similar work; provided always they can command the services of as good an editor as Fuller C. Smith, who we strongly suspect is the editor in chief.—Burlington Clipper.

FARMERS

Thrifty Farmers Should Keep a Bank Account

Did you ever think of the advantages a check account affords—a perfect receipt—easy method of making change—a complete cash account? You probably have, but have said, perhaps, "I can't keep a large balance and they won't want to bother with it."

We are always looking for your account, be it large or small. We furnish the checks; returning them when cancelled, with a monthly statement of your account.
